Hi, all,

If you've been to the web site recently, you should have noticed a different banner on the home page. There are actually twelve of them; a small code script on the site picks one of the twelve at random whenever the home page is loaded into someone's browser.

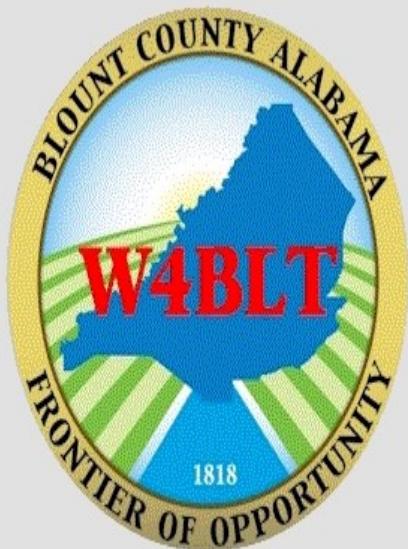

I grabbed the images from the site's photo pages. Sadly, the orientation isn't perfect in all of them, and some folks' faces are covered up by the Blount County seal, as you can see in the twelve images I put together:

That's where you come in,

If you have a photo from an event or meeting and would like to see it on the site, please send it to me. Or you could photograph your radio bench or ham shack and send that photo. I'm including the image template (below) so you can see the orientation that works. You can also plan the photo so nothing important gets blotted out by the seal. Don't bother cropping to size; I'll do that, and will present your image as best as I can.

Thanks for helping!
